Leadership and Change Management

September 17-21, 2018

These are exciting times for the world. There are immense cultural, social, political and organizational transformations which create challenges as well as opportunities for people, organizations and society. Leadership in organizations in the current context requires an overall understanding of the fast-paced changes of both the external and internal environments to be able to respond effectively. Leadership is essential for any system to begin to respond adequately to the present and be ready for the future.

Today's leaders need to depart from earlier modes of providing direction. They require tools for understanding themselves and understanding others, and the knowledge and understanding of strategy. They also require skills in diagnosis and analysis. This programme will provide an ideal platform for leaders to explore these issues to be able to make strategic choices anchored in the vision of the organization and for understanding of self and others.

Concept

The programme aims to

- explore leadership roles required in the changing context
- realign and recalibrate self with new knowledge, concepts, and tools

The programme will provide a platform for key role-holders to reflect upon the new directions, actions, choices and strategies for implementation.

Programme Highlights

- The Task of Leadership
- Multiple Perspectives and Leadership
- Leadership in Complex Situations
- Leadership Styles
- Managing Talent
- Organizational Structure and Culture
- Managing Change
- Managing Innovation
- Taking Charge and Leading Strategy
- Leaders and their Emotional Maturity

Participants' Profile

The programme is aimed at senior leaders of organizations and top level administrators.

Pedagogy

The programme will use a mix of pedagogical tools:

- Case studies
- Presentations and lecture discussions
- Participants' presentations
- Role plays

Faculty

- Bhatnagar, Deepti
- Kandathil, George
- Khokle, Pradyumna
- Sharma, Sunil
